

Nancy is worried she will lose access to electricity during the hurricane, which is necessary for her medical equipment. She knows that the nearby general hospital is prepared and will have access to electricity.

Nancy opens up the hospital's app and indicates that she would like to shelter there for her specific need. The hospital's system receives the request and processes it.

Using Nancy's indicated needs, the system matches her up with a medical shelter she could go to instead. Nancy receives a smartphone notification with this information, and she lets her caregiver know where to take her.
